Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 04 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Cold and showery, winds easing for most.

This Evening and Tonight:
A band of showery rain across central UK slowly moving southwards. Clear spells following from the north, allowing for a frost in places, whilst wintry showers affect northern Scotland. Remaining windy in the north and east.

Wednesday:
Sunny spells and showers, some heavy with hail and thunder, especially in the north and east. Snow on hills, also to low levels in the far north at first. Cold.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Sunny spells and showers through Thursday and Friday, overnight frost in places. Rain and strong winds spreading north and east Saturday. Turning less cold for most, warmer in the southeast.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.